So Far It's Fine

It seems almost too much to hope that this mild summer weather will continue but the fact remains that by this time last year we had already gone through six straight days when it registered 100 or above. It was only the beginning.

The temperature at 7 a.m. was 68, 90 at 1 p.m. and 91 at 2 p. m.

The temperature one year ago today, high 94, low 69; two years ago, high 98, low 75, with .07 inch of rainfall; and three years ago, high 99, low 73.

Partly cloudy with little change in temperature tonight and Saturday. High Saturday Low tonight in upper 60s.

Speed Radar For Sedalia?

certainly be out of character if it appear- villages but posted warnings of radar ed without a listing of someone being fined for speeding on Sedalia streets.

There has been a noticeable decrease in speeding since the police have been keeping more than a casual eye on crosstown traffic. But there has also been an increase in traffic. And the problem of catching all the speeders is nigh to

Some cities are coping with this situation by adopting a mechanical gadget known as a radar speed control. It's not new and has been a long time coming

Jefferson City started using radar equipment to bring speeders to justice. About 219 successful prosecutions brought in over $2,000 in fines. The idea of making money on speeders is

The Daily Record column would as repugnant as a speed trap in isolated speed zones is fair notice and the resultant fines might well underwrite the cost of this modern device.

> Columbia's city council has moved to purchase radar equipment the cost of which with walkie-talkie and a panel truck in which to install the radar will be about $2,400.

> Radar records the highest speed of a car in a split second. One of the effects of such installation is a definite public reaction to slow down and thus minimize potential accidents

No doubt Sedalia should have similar equipment, the sooner the better since it won't tax the budget judging from the way it is paying for itself in

Doctor Candidates for National Health

Although medical tuition fees cover less than half the actual cost of a medical student's education (the remainder being met by endowments or general university funds), a recent survey of 6,000 medical students shows that one-third of them borrowed money to continue school. Since 1940, medical tuition fees have increased 85 percent. Yet medical schoolsforced not only to pay higher maintenance wages, but also to purchase important gadgets like electron microscopes (which cost $20,000 apiece) - are still operating in the red.

Under these circumstancese, it is estimated that there will be only 1.25 active physicians per 1000 Americans in 1960. Fewer young men can afford to become doctors, and fewer colleges can afford to train them properly.

To meet what amounts to an emergency in terms of the nation's future public health, the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare has started hearings on legislation to aid medical education by federal grants-in-aid. The legislation would apportion $50,000,000 annually among medical schools to pay for no more than half the cost of constructing or expanding educational and research facilities. The grants would continue for five years. There is no doubt at all that they are badly needed.

Some fear that this legislation would lead to "federal control" of medical education. But there have been no charges of such control from other government programs which have for years authorized grants-in-aid to construct hospitals and teach special Department of Defense medical courses. There should be no cry of "socialized medicine" for a program such as this, which seeks only to help train more private doctors, for the benefit of more future Americans

The Washington Merry-Go-Round-Mrs. Hobby Wanted to Frame Answers

WASHINGTON - Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov stirred up national indignation when he refused to submit to free questioning on a TV program last week. But unknown to the public, America's own Secretary of Health, Oveta Culp Hobby, pulled the same trick and almost got away with it.

In fact, Mrs. Hobby even outdid Molotov, who was willing to appear on CBS's "Face the Nation" program if all questions were submitted in advance. Mrs. Hobby went so far as to hand reporters a prepared script, telling them what questions to ask

The lady cabinet member agreed to be interviewed on the CBS radio program, "Reporters Roundup," by veteran newsman Jim Lucas of Scripps-Howard and Clark Mollenhoff of the Des Moines Register and Tribune. At the last minute, however, she sent over a prepared script and an ultimatum.

She would not appear on the program, she sent word, unless the reporters stuck to the script. They were to ask her the questions she wanted to be asked, then wait for her prepared answers. In other words, the reporters would appear as straight men, giving her the cues for her lines.

Of course, Lucas and Mollenhoff flatly rejected her ultimatum. They sent back an ultimatum of their own. If she refused to submit to free questioning, they would announce it on the program and interview her severest critic, Oregon's Senator Wayne Morse, in her place.

Mrs. Hobby thought this over for 15 minutes. tore up the prepared script and meekly showed up for a no-holds-barred interview. She may have regretted it afterward, for it was on this program she made the famous statement that the Salk vaccine program had not been mishandled but that, in any case, it was all Surgeon-General Leonard Scheele's fault.

Note: When Molotov refused to face free questioning, CBS Vice President Sig Mickelson announced: "The right of free questioning by the press and open discussion is the cornerstone of international understanding."

Washington correspondents would say the same is true of domestic understanding, though too many administration officials, like Mrs. Hoboby, have adopted the philosophy that the government knows best what the public should be told. Lattimore Case

Real victor when the Justice Department decided to drop the case against Owen Lattimore was former Judge Thurman Arnold and his two associates, Abe Fortas and Paul Porter. They form the law firm that took the Dr. Peters case up to the Supreme Court, battled the Dorothy Bailey case, defended Lattimore and have done more than any other three lawyers to fight for civil liberties. With them in the Lattimore case was Senator Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming.

In none of these cases did they take a fee,

Guest Editorial—

HARRISONVILLE (Mo.) DEMOCRAT-MISSOURIAN: We read and hear so much about making the drinking water pure these days that I am made to wonder how we all lived to be grown in my day. I remember we had a table in the kitchen next to the door and one thing on it was a cedar water bucket with brass hoops. Our mother kept those hoops polished until they shone. In that bucket was either a dipper or a gourd from which we all drank. (Isn't that a terrible thought.) The water had been drawn from the well at the back of the kitchen with a rope and bucket, until later he had a pump installed. It seems to me now that the water was colder and clearer than any of our refrigerator kept water of today. On that same table was a tin "wash pan" and a soap dish, with a roller towel hanging on the back of the door. Never had "His" or "Hers" on them, they belonged to the entire family and when they were dirty a clean one was placed on the roller.

and in the Lattimore case they even had to pay the expense of the appeals The Lattimore case, incidentally, was brought not by Brownell but in the final month of the Truman administration by retiring Attorney General James McGranery as the result of a pledge he gave the late Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada, that if confirmed by the Senate he would prosecute Lattimore.

McCarran, then chairman of the Judiciary Committee, had held protracted closed - door hearings in which Lattimore was crossexamined for days at a time. It was on the basis of a memory test as much as anything that Lattimore was indicted, namely, whether he perjured himself when he testified regarding the use of Laughlin Currie's office and the answering of certain mail some ten years before. New Governor of Texas?

It may be denied, but outgoing Undersecretary of Defense Robert Anderson will return out of the business of selling electo Texas to run for governor. He has been tric power to consumers at lower power plants and get rid of those sounded out by some of Governor Allan Shivers' rates than those of private power it has. most powerful supporters, who are tired of Shivers and would like to see Anderson in the Texas executive mansion.

This is the real reason Anderson is quitting the Pentagon before becoming too closely identified with the Republican administration. Though Texans voted for President Eisenhower, they are traditionally Democratic and their sensibilities might be offended by a gubernatorial candidate wearing a GOP label.

Anderson did such a capable job, first as Secretary of the Navy, then as Undersecretary of Defense, that he was considered in line for Charlie Wilson's job as Secretary of Defense, nesses. However, the soft-spoken Texan, who has a heart of gold, prefers to go home to Texas

Meanwhile Governor Shivers, sensing he is on the way out, has tried to cook up a deal with Texas Senator Price Daniel. Shivers has wanted Daniel to give up his Senate seat and run for the governorship with Shivers' support. Then Shivers would get himself appointed to the Senate in Daniel's place.

Daniel was once interested, but now realizes most of Shivers' support has gone over to

Politico-Go-Round

Oklahoma Republicans have been thinking about pulling an "Ed Moore" by pushing alleged Democrat William C. Doenges for the Senate on the Republican ticket. Doenges is Democratic national committeeman from Oklahoma, but worked covertly for Eisenhower and was once told by Democratic Chairman Steve Mitchell: "All you do is use the mask of the Democratic party." Oklahoma Republicans once elected Ed Moore, a Democrat, to the Senate as a Republican, and some of them would like to do the same with Doenges. . . . Herbert Hoover's assistants are doing more than making recommendations on reorganizing the government. The other day Hoover's research director, Harold Metz, sat in the Government Operations Committee handing up little slips of paper to Congressman Clarence Brown of Ohio, and Congressman Charles Jonas, the only Republican from North Carolina. They in turn were the only congressmen asking critical questions about the Rural Electrification Commission. . . . Hoover, who hates public power or anything close to it, has recommended the gutting of REA. . . . President Eisenhower put his signature on an agreement giving Argentina nuclear materials and secret atomic data from the USA after the recent Catholic riots on Buenos Aires.

Sobeloff Probably Advised Dropping Lattimore Charges

By Joseph A. Dear Democrat-Capital Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON - The Justice Department probably dropped its perjury charges against Owen Lattimore on the advice of Solicitor General Simon Sobeloff, the official who usually presents the government's case in the Supreme Court, Lattimore, an authority on Mongolia and other Far Eastern areas, was one of Senator Joseph Mc-Carthy's (R-Wis.) first targets. The Senator once asserted he was the Kremlin's chief espionage agent in the United States.

The perjury charges against Lattimore were an outgrowth of his appearance before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee in February 1952. Lattimore told the Subcommittee he had never followed the Communist line or promoted Communist interests. The Justice Department charged that he lied on these points, and others

Youngdahl, fo mer Rebpublican governor of Minnesota, held the government's principal charges against Lattimore were "formless and obscure." The Judge ruled that the charges violated Lattimore's constitutional right to be informed of accusations in specific The Court of Appeals upheld

Senator Alexander Wiley is convinced his junior colleague from Wisconsin - Senator McCarthy is on the upswing back in the state.

Wiley's office is receiving lots of pro-McCarthy mail. And Wiley, District Court Judge Luther the ranking Republican on the Foreign Relations Committee, fears McCarthy may come out against him in the Republican Senatorial primaries next year. That probably explains why Wi

Cerebral Palsy Sufferers Need Careful Treatment

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D. There are somewhat more than 20,000 children born in the United States each year with an unfortunate disability known as cerebral palsy (formerly mistakenly About twocalled "spastic"). thirds of the cerebral palsy victims are mentally normal. Approximately half of these are disabled enough in other respects to require special treatment.

An injury to the brain occurring before, during, or right after birth produces cerebral palsy. The diagnosis can be made as a rule within the first six months of life and almost always by the time a voungster is a year old. This diagnosis should be made early because the results of treatment are better if started prom-

Fire Destroys Large Barn Near Fortuna

A large barn on the Dale Maupin farm, east of Fortuna, was destroyed by fire about 9 a.m. Thursday, the blaze when discovered having gained such headway that it would not be checked. The Tipton Rural Fire Company with its fire truck made a fast run to the scene but was unable to be of much assistance. Between 500 and 600 bales of hav in the barn burned. The origin of the fire is undetermined.

Interpreting The News Notice of Final Settlement Notice is Hereby Given, That the undersigned Administrative of the Estate of Lacey W. Howe, deceased, were

Associated Press News Analyst Fifty years ago Norway declared her independence of Sweden and in a plebiscite "elected" a Danish prince, son-in-law of King Edward of England, to be her king.

After this long trial period, they say today that if Norway should become a republic, Haakon VII could certainly be elected

That should give you some idea about how the Norwegians feel when they hear their 82-year-old national father-to them he is more a father than a ruler-has broken his thigh in a bathtub accident. His condition doesn't seem to be too serious, as things like that go, but broken bones seldom knit for people of that age. They are a solemn reminder of the short time left, at best, for the aged hero. Haakon became "Mr. Norway" for sure when the Germans invaded his country in 1940.

He had long been one of the nation's chief exponents of democracy. His romantic marriage to the Princess Maud had early given him a place in the hearts of the Danish and Norwegian peoples, always closely affiliated, though the Norwegians were restless when ruled by Danish kings, as they were later under Swedish kings. The system had been for joint rule by the neighbors along with Norwegian kings. That system had lasted

The various royal families involved had intended for the oung prince to wed Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands. But he fell hard for Maud, and finally won consent.

The contretemps, established them as human beings, and after they entered the palace at Oslo they-were able to move about the country, taking part in winter sports and talking to their 'constituents" over beer or coffee.

Until 1940 Haakon was the friend of the people. Then the German dive bombers chased him from one retreat to another, trying to kill him, and then the invaders tried to get him to return to Oslo and become a puppet. Instead, he moved to Britain, after calling on all Norwegians to join him in continuing their resistance, and became a national hero. Under his Ukase. Norway fought to the bitter end, with sabotage at home and all the resources of ships and men which it could send the Allies Crown Prince Olav, 51, sounds much like a chip off the old block. Many years ago he took up the study of civil engineering "to have something to fall back on if I get the gate." He was born before his father was a king, and grew up when kings were toppling all over Europe. He knows the uncertainties of that line of work. But if there is anything surer than taxes, it is that King Haakon the Dane and his family-his British wife died in 1938-are firmly fixed in the hearts of Norwegians.
